Now is the time to Buy a Brick. Leave your mark in a section of the Fairway Mews new Clubhouse Patio. Each brick can be purchased for $100.

Wishing you all a Happy Thanksgiving.

President’s Notes
By Tom Basile

In previous articles I have described the duties of the FMCA Board and told you of the fine work done by its members. Now I would like to share with you some of the qualities which make our manager, Traye Blackburn, exceptional. While many of you will say that you already knew that, there are as many new members of our community who perhaps don’t know him or his impact on the community.

Traye has been our manager for the past four years, just as long as I have been your president. He was previously our Golf Pro, much admired by all who met him. He decided to change careers and become our manager. This transition was not easy because he had to learn many management skills including: systems, finance, and the management of a 14 person staff. From the start he showed fine leadership skills and earned the respect of his staff. He also became the focal point of the Board. Traye prepares all the materials for each monthly committee meeting and coordinates the actual meetings. He is a tremendous asset to all the Board members. His preparation for the Finance Committee and the Board package each month requires hours of review and work.

To members of the Mews community and to those outside the hedges, Traye is the face of our community. He always provides service with a smile. His first response is never to say no, but rather “let me see if we can work this out.” He has developed really good relationships with the town Department of Public Works which have proved most important on several occasions. His work with our key vendors has proved invaluable.

When he began as our manager, I told him we wanted him to work toward the certifications in the Condo Association Industry, and that we would pay the respective fees. He has diligently been earning the various levels of certification. These are constantly an important source of information to the Mews.

We joke with Traye that his golf game may be suffering since he has had less time to devote to it. However, I have it on good information that he still has a pro game. During the many years of my career I had a number of very qualified professionals report to me. Traye, with his great work ethic, leadership skills and can do attitude, would have no trouble fitting right in among them.

Of course, these are some, but certainly not all of the qualities and skills that he brings to the Mews. So, the next time you see Traye, tell him how much you appreciate the fine job he is doing.

Traye, thanks for a job well done!
MESSAGE FROM THE MANAGER
by Traye Blackburn

We are now underway with all of our fall maintenance activities. For the golf course staff that means aerifying, top dressing & verti-cutting to make the course spectacular in the spring. For our own FM landscaping staff, that means our turf renovation program, perimeter hedge renovation program & the planting of 10-15 trees in the community. For Live Oak Landscaping this means leaves, leaves and more leaves! The clean-up process has begun and will continue through December by cleaning up the leaves and pine needles that looked lovely on the trees, but now look very messy on the ground. Community-wide gutter cleaning will take place for participating local associations at the end of November. This service will be performed by Touch of Gold Gutters as it was in the spring of this year. We are now in the process of gearing up all of our snow removal equipment to get ready for our first snowfall.

The Fairway Mews Community Association Annual Meeting was held on Tuesday, October 1. At that meeting three seats were filled by Tom Basile, Maeve O’Malley & Al Astoreca for three-year terms on the Fairway Mews Board of Directors. I look forward to working with you all in our upcoming adventures!

The FM Community Clubhouse is now closed to all activities and will remain that way for 4-6 months. This closing is for the Phase II Clubhouse renovation project. Improvements include: parking lot expansion, Golf Shop and main room updating and expansion, two new entrances, new roof, new mansard roof, kitchen updates, new patio, new landscaping and more! Once the renovation is close to completion, residents will be notified of a reopening date.

The FM Golf Shop will still be operational throughout this process! The Golf Shop will operate out of an office trailer that is down by the putting green. It will remain open until December 29, 2019 and then re-open at a date TBD. There have been a lot of curve balls thrown at our “rookie” Fairway Mews Golf Pro this year, but Dan O’Malley has adapted to his new home in a great way. I would like to say thanks for a great year to Dan and his assistant, Rob Hirzel. It was great to work with the two of you in 2019 and we look forward to next year! Remember that the golf course closes completely in January, and it may open up in a limited capacity some time in February. The opening times are also TBD and hinge on weather and Clubhouse construction progress. We will keep you posted.

As the weather gets colder, plans need to be made to winterize your unit. Whether you remain at the Mews or not, certain things need to be addressed. One precaution is to turn off all outside hose bibs and make sure they are properly drained. Another would be to disconnect and drain any outside hoses and remove door mats that may hinder our snow removal program. If you are going away for a prolonged period of time, you should have your water shut off and pipes drained inside your unit. As I have seen in the past frozen and or bursting pipes can cause a ton of headaches. Get out in front of the problem!

Speaking of cold; bags of ice melt will be available to all residents starting on Monday, November 25. Residents may apply these small portions of ice melt to paved/concreted area around their unit. Please make a concerted effort to keep the ice melt off any turf areas as this can burn the turf and soil. In the event of a significant snow storm (predicted to be 10 inches or more) look for an email from the Main Office. This notification will ask residents who are not here for the duration of the storm to offer to have their unit cleared on the second wave of the clean-up process. We will still clean volunteered units, but it will be on the second wave of the clean-up. In a big storm every minute counts, and it means a lot to our staff and your neighbors to help in this effort, so in advance THANK YOU!

On behalf of the entire Fairway Mews Staff, I wish everyone a Happy and Healthy Thanksgiving! Please note that the Fairway Mews Main Office will be closed on Thursday, November 28 and Friday, November 29.

HONOR, REMEMBER
by Geoff Blake

Hero—A person admired for bravery, great achievement, or good qualities
Cambridge-Oxford Dictionary

November is the month that we celebrate our beloved veterans, our heroes. The debt we, as Americans, owe to them is immeasurable. The men and women who currently serve in our armed forces should be held in the highest esteem as well. They all represent the best in America and are heroes every day.

I recently had the honor to visit the 9/11 Memorial at Ground Zero in Manhattan. I had never been there before. What an experience! I know many of you have visited this sacred site and have also been to various military memorials and cemeteries like the Vietnam Memorial at PNC Arts Center as well as Arlington National Cemetery and the cemetery right here in Jackson. All of these sights should give us great feelings of reflection and respect.

The 9/11 Memorial is a bit different than other memorials and cemeteries. You really relive those moments leading up to the attack and the awful aftermath. The museum is filled with artifacts, film clips and memories of survivors. They even have a display of clothing that was being sold in a WTC store covered in the soot and grime from the attack. The Survivors’ Staircase was a display that I certainly won’t forget. Next to the actual staircase is a picture of the many people who used that staircase to flee the building before it was overcome by falling debris.

I really wanted to find the name of my friend, Paul Keating, who was a fireman for Ladder 5-Engine 24 on Houston Street. Paul grew up in Spring Lake. His parents, Neil and the late Muriel Keating, were residents of Fairway Mews. Paul’s story on that day certainly puts him in the hero category as well. He lived directly across the street from WTC over Firehouse #10. He was asleep having just worked a double at his firehouse. He woke to the horrific sound of the first plane hitting and rushed down stairs to the firehouse to help. His sister was on the phone with him when the second plane hit and his last words were, “Gotta go help my brothers.” He was one of the first into the WTC. His body was recovered exactly five months later to the day of the attack.

Paul and the other fireman and police who lost their lives on that day are truly heroes. They gave their lives to save people from all over the globe as well as from around the corner. On this Veterans’ Day, let’s remember and honor these heroes as well.

THEY DID THEIR SHARE
by Joanna Fuchs, poet

On Veterans Day we honor
Soldiers who protect our nation.
For their services our warriors
They deserve our admiration.
Some of them were drafted;
Some were volunteers.
For some it was just yesterday;
For some it’s been many years.
We owe so much to them,
Who kept us safe from terror.
So when we see a uniform,
Let’s say “thank you” to every wearer.
I will commence this month’s rant with a diatribe about a new culinary twist that demands that every meal must be infused with cheese. I have no problem with cocktail party cheese and a slice of it on a hamburger. But the new trend is to slather every dish with mozzarella. It is suggested that one should serve mozzarella with the Thanksgiving turkey. Throw a slab of it on a BLT or a Club Sandwich. One would be remiss if it were not added to a ham, roast beef or normal cheese sandwich. I know there are cheesemongers among us, but please give me a break from the universal application of mozzarella.

Our Men’s Golf has, over the years, taken to having lunch at different establishments after our golf game. Recently, we descended on a restaurant in Bradley Beach to partake of a $5 per item menu. On this day, a new member accompanied us and he ordered the hamburger with french fries. It must be told that the new member was from the Midwest, Ohio, to be precise. Upon receiving the burger, he asked the owner if he could have mustard for his burger. The owner jumped back as if he had been shot and promptly declined the request for mustard. Our member explained that in the Midwest it was not always customary to use ketchup and that a great deal of Midwesterners would prefer mustard. The owner dug in his heels and would not budge. Our new player then politely told the manager what he could do with his ketchup bottle.

Approximately 5 years ago, I wrote about certain detractors who were preeminent among our golfers. These individuals were famous for the following:

1. The gravel cruncher who walks incessantly when you are about to hit the ball.
2. The overdone practice swinger who takes at least 6 swings before making contact.
3. The talker who will not stop.
4. The pocket change jangler.
5. The ball or club dropper.
6. The ball finder who must fish out balls, while you are trying to concentrate.

I wrote that these wrongdoers were alive and well in Fairway Mews. I now bring this up because, upon reflection, I believe we have made great strides in eliminating these distractions either by attrition, death or just plain calling them out. We have evolved into an almost perfect gentleman’s game. But one irritating golfer still remains: the golf ball flutterer who flips his ball up to give a better lie in the rough, when he thinks no one is looking. We know WHO YOU ARE AND YOU WILL BE HUNTED DOWN.

In 1939 Thomas Stearns Eliot published a collection of whimsical poems about cats that he had written for his god-children. It was called, Old Possum’s Book of Practical Cats, and it was an instant success.

In 1954 English composer, Alan Hawthorne, set six of the poems to music. About the same time, another composer, Humphrey Seattle, set two more of the poems to music. Neither of these men saw much fame from their musical selections.

In 1977, Andrew Lloyd Weber decided to take his favorite children’s book of poems and create what would become a masterpiece, when CATS, opened on Broadway pm1982. Now in 2019 “A new day has begun!” At long last CATS is getting the big-screen treatment. On December 20 we will be able to view the production at our local movie theater. It will star Dame Judy Dench, Taylor Swift, James Corden and Jennifer Hudson. The producer, Tom Hooper, says that the cats were designed using “digital fur technology.” I can’t wait!

To put you in the proper mood, here is a sampling of…

The Naming Of Cats

By T. S. Eliot

“When you notice a cat in profound meditation,

The reason I tell you is always the same

His mind is engaged in a rapt contemplation

Of the thought, of the thought, of the thought

Of his name:

His ineffable effable.

Effinineffable—

Deep and inscrutable singular name.”
CHILDREN OF GOD
By Mary Doria Russell
Review by Maureen Cronin

‘Everything we thought we understood—that was what we were most wrong about.’

This book is the sequel to The Sparrow, a book I reviewed in August for The Mews News. If you haven’t read that one, please do so before reading the sequel. It flows seamlessly from one book to the other, but the information about the first mission is really necessary to enjoy the second book.

Father Emilio Sanchez, the sole survivor to return from the Jesuit mission to establish First Contact with the sentient species on the planet Rakhat, is back on Earth. He is faced with a personal crisis of faith, and a tribunal of fellow Jesuits attempting both to assist in his recovery and figure out what went wrong and how to repair the damage. Emilio will return to Rakhat, where he will have the perspective of time to see the effects of the first mission on the two species that inhabit that planet. On Rakhat, the author offers the perspectives of members of the Runa and Jana’ata species we had met in the previous novel. We learn what it has meant to them as the balance of power shifts between the oppressed and the oppressor. There is no question that the introduction of a new species, (homo sapiens), with its own sense of morality, has produced a seismic shift in life on the planet. The big question is: did they have the right?

It is challenging to do this review, because I really try to avoid spoilers. There really isn’t a lot I can say about the story. In an interview at the end of the book, the author offers her idea of the theme and purpose in revisiting this planet where Homo Sapiens had inserted itself so forcefully in its’ First Contact. She told her interviewer: “Children of God is about the aftermath of irreversible tragedy, about the many ways we struggle to make sense of tragedy. It’s about the stories we tell ourselves, and the ways we justify our decisions, to bring ourselves some kind of peace. And I guess it’s about the way time reveals significance, strips away self-serving excuses, lays truth bare, and both blunts pain and sharpens insight.” I certainly can’t say it better than that.

Just one other thought: please don’t be intimidated by these reviews! These books were so good that I put them on my list among the ten best books (or series) I ever read. They aren’t a super easy romp, but they are beautiful and thought-provoking, and peopled with characters you will not easily forget. Winter is coming (alas), and these are good reads for those cold evenings beside a fire!
Golf News

by Dan O’Malley, Golf Pro

Welcome to the Golf Shop Trailer (GST), we are up and running and completely operational! The GST will be fully stocked with merchandise and accessories for all your holiday needs! As always, gift wrapping is available for all purchases. Come stop in and said hello to Rob and me in the GST. In other news, Rob and I would like to thank everyone here at FMGC for such a great year. Even more special events and clinics are planned for next year! I have been in contact with local Golf Simulator facilities to continue teaching throughout the winter. Once I work out all the details with scheduling, etc., I will send out a flyer containing all important information to continue improving your golf game throughout the winter.

O’Malley’s Tip Of The Month

Back To Basics

Let’s take it back to the beginning: grip and set-up. I am writing this tip because it is something everyone needs to always work on no matter their skill level. Also it can be done without even swinging a golf club!

1. Grip – Right-handed golfers. Left hand (top hand) you should be able to see roughly two knuckles. When you place your right hand on the club, let the thumb of your left hand fit into the lifeline of right hand. Here is a picture to help clarify what I mean...

2. Set up – when addressing the golf ball, the proper golf posture should be an athletic stance, giving you the best ability to properly move though the shot. Here is how to do that: if you are standing straight up first slightly bend your knees. Next with the slight knee bend, feel like someone is pushing in on your hips, think of keeping your backside out! Here is a picture:
SWEET TEASE TEA ROOM
An Out and About Dining Review
by Maureen Cronin

It started with a small storefront in Manasquan in 2009, and enjoyed such success that Sweet Tease expanded to a much larger space at 604 Main Street in Belmar. Now the several cozy rooms can be filled with parties, casual lunches, book clubs and high tea gatherings. The front room offers teas and breakfast items to be purchased and taken home, as well as tables for breakfast, lunches or just a “cuppa” on a cold winter’s day. The two back rooms are available for reserved parties or to enjoy one of the “themed” high teas.

Everything in the shop seems to have a story to tell! The large chandelier dates back to the Philadelphia World’s Fair of 1876, and many of the iron tables were rescued from the Barkley before its demolition. Vintage mismatched teapots and teacups adorn shelves and tables, and one can only imagine that each has a story of its own.

The “signature event” at Sweet Tease is definitely the Afternoon High Tea, served twice daily, with a different theme each month. I visited in October to celebrate a friend’s birthday, and we were treated to the Black Hat Society Tea Party. These “high teas” include an appetizer soup or salad, followed by the arrival of a three tiered platter of delicious goodies. The first tier of “savorsies” included slices of quiche, chicken salad on croissant and Beef Wellington puffs. The next layer was scones with jam and Devonshire cream, and the third layer was sweets: brownies, cheesecake and pastries. Of course all this bounty was accompanied by bottomless pots of different teas. It is their highest priced offering and is not inexpensive at $30, but is great fun for a special occasion! The hosts intend for their guests to stay for a couple of hours of conversation and nibbling.

The November Afternoon Tea theme will be “Give Thanks for the Bountea,” focusing on American Colonial and Native American recipes. December will be “Home for the Holidays,” featuring recipes from holidays around the world.

If you are so inclined, Sweet Tease also has its own book club, with information on their website about the titles and dates. The books tend to be focused on foods and beverages, for example on November 15 the title is The World of Pies, and attendees will be making a pie to take home.

Sweet Tease is open from Tuesday to Saturday from 8 AM to 4 PM, and on Sundays from 8 AM to 2 PM. Breakfast, lunch and tea and pastries don’t require reservations, but for high teas and book clubs, call 732-722-8030 to check on times and availability. And feel free to join in the spirit of the monthly theme! When we visited, a group of five ladies at the next table were all wearing black hats: from witches’ points, to “fascinators” to elegant chapeaux with sweeping feathers. Wish we had thought of that!
WE SHOULD ALL KNOW ABOUT IMPEACHMENT
by Geoff Blake

“The President, Vice President and all Civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors.”

U.S.Constitution, Article II, SECTION 4.

Our Constitution gives the House of Representatives the sole power to impeach an official, and it makes the Senate the sole court for impeachment trials. The power of impeachment is limited to removal from office as well as to disqualifying the person from holding an office in the future. Any fines or jail time for crimes committed while in office are left to civil courts.

Impeachment comes from British constitutional history. The process goes back to the 14th century as a way for Parliament to hold the king’s ministers, not the king, accountable for their public actions. When the United States was being formed, the founding fathers feared the potential for abuse of executive power, so they made it part of the Constitution. Before the U.S. Constitution was even written, individual states provided for impeachment in their separate constitutions. States referred to crimes of “maladministration” and “corruption” as reasons for officials being impeached.

When the Constitutional Convention convened in Philadelphia, the framers argued back and forth at first about whether impeachment trials should even be part of the U.S. Constitution.

Some argued that the legislative branch passing judgment on the executive branch would undermine the separation of powers. Their thought was to let the people try the President for his behavior at the ballot box. Others believed that the threat of impeachment, if stated in the Constitution, would keep the executive in check. Some didn’t think that Congress would have the “resolve to convict a sitting President.”

Eventually, all sides came together and the founders decided to follow the British example where the House Of Commons brought charges against officers and the House of Lords considered them at trial. Our House of Representatives would present the charges of impeachment while the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court would preside over the Senate during the trial for conviction and removal from office.

The founders also decided what crimes constituted grounds for impeachment. Treason and bribery were first and foremost. James Madison objected to the term “maladministration” that was being used at the time. He felt it was too vague. George Mason liked “other high Crimes and Misdemeanors,” a technical term, again borrowed from British legal practice, that denoted crimes by public officials against the government. This was accepted without further delay. It would later prove that this term failed to really clarify what constituted impeachable offenses.

Individual Members of the House can introduce impeachment resolutions like ordinary bills or the House could initiate proceedings by passing a resolution authorizing an inquiry. The Judiciary Committee investigates the charges then chooses whether to pursue articles of impeachment against the accused official and report them to the full House. If the articles are adopted by a simple majority vote, members are chosen to manage the trial in the Senate on its behalf. These members act as prosecutors at the Senate trial. The composition of these members is varied but all are to support the House’s impeachment action.

The House has initiated impeachment trials more than sixty times but less than a third have led to full impeachment. In only eight cases, all involving federal judges, have there been removal from office by the Senate. Two Presidents have been impeached by the House, Andrew Johnson and Bill Clinton. Neither was convicted or removed by the Senate.

President Andrew Johnson’s trial was very interesting and set a precedent for the future. His trial focused on whether the President could remove cabinet officers without obtaining Congressional approval. Johnson’s acquittal firmly set the precedent that the President may remove appointees even if they require Senate confirmation to hold office.

I learned a lot researching this very important topic that is certainly on our minds today. I hope you know a little more now as well.
PAYBACK

A man spoke to each of his three sons when he sent them off to college.

“I feel it’s my duty to provide you with the best possible education, and you do not owe me anything for that. However, I want you to appreciate it. As a token, please each put $1,000 into my coffin when I die.”

And so it happened.

His sons became a doctor, a financial planner and a lawyer, each very successful financially. When their father’s time had come, and they saw their father in the coffin, they remembered his wish.

First, the doctor put ten newly printed $100 bills onto the chest of the deceased.

Then the financial planner also put $1,000 there in twenty newly printed crisp $50 bills.

Finally, it was the heartbroken lawyer’s turn. He reached into his pocket, took out his checkbook, wrote a check for $3,000, put it into his father’s coffin, and took out the $2,000 in cash!!!

November ---from the Latin word novem ‘nine’ because this had been the ninth month of the early Roman calendar:

Perhaps there are some facts about the history of Thanksgiving that have been tucked away in your mind for a while, so let’s review the following information:

In a 1789 proclamation President George Washington called on the people of the United States to acknowledge God for affording them an opportunity to peaceably establish a form of government for their safety and happiness.

Thanksgiving became a national holiday in 1863. In that year, during the Civil War, President Abraham Lincoln made his famous proclamation, which remains the standard, to set apart and observe the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving Day.

It was not until the start of World War II in 1941 that Congress finally designated the fourth Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day and a Federal holiday. It took 147 years of negotiations for this to occur.

Not to disappoint my sweets loving readers, may I suggest this recipe. Everyone loves it, so be ready to share it with your guests. It’s quite simple, not too many ingredients, and may be served at room temperature or cold.

ESCALLOPED PINEAPPLE

- 2 sticks of butter
- 1½ cups sugar
- 4 eggs, beaten
- ¼ cup milk

1 20-oz. can crushed pineapple, do not drain.
8 slices of white bread cut into 1” x 1” cubes.

Grease a 7x11 baking pan. Add the bread cubes also creamed butter, sugar, eggs, milk and pineapple. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serve warm or cold.

My final thought is gather loved ones to celebrate all the blessings bestowed upon us with love in our hearts because “that’s what it’s all about.”

Most sincerely,

Joan

YELLOW SQUASH AND CORN CHOWDER

Chop 3 small yellow squash and 1 onion; cut kernels from 2 ears of corn. Heat 1 Tbsp. oil in Dutch oven on medium heat. Add onions, 3 minced garlic cloves, 2 cups squash and 1 cup of the corn; mix well. Cook 4 to 5 min. or until tender, stirring occasionally. Add 2 cups milk and 1 cup water; mix well. Bring to boil, stirring frequently. Simmer on medium-low heat 10 min. stirring occasionally. Meanwhile, combine remaining squash and corn with 1 chopped seeded fresh jalapeno pepper; reserve for later use. Add 4 oz. cubed Philadelphia Neufchatel Cheese to soup; cook and stir 5 min. or until melted. Blend soup, in batches, in blender until smooth. Serve topped with reserved vegetable mixture and ¼ cup Kraft Grated Parmesan Cheese. Special Extra: Top soup with ¼ cup loosely packed thinly sliced fresh basil before ladling into bowls to serve. 4 svgs. 1 cup each

Mourning Dove, Zenaida macroura. These doves are quite common and numerous. A slender medium-sized dove is distinguished by its long, stiff, acutely pointed tail. The head is small, almost ridiculously so—perhaps that’s why it isn’t too bright! Very social, it walks around bobbing its head in an aimless manner, constantly pecking at the ground. When a mourning dove takes off, it does so in an explosive manner, rising almost vertically complete with sounds effects! The song is a mellow, plaintive, whistled query that begins with a 3-part cooing phrase followed by 3-spaced coos ‘WhoOOoo? Who? Who? Who?’

Cedar Waxwings, Bombycilla garrulus. I happen to love the Cedar Waxwings. They are hard to see, but they have a distinct whistle when flocking from tree to tree, fairly high up. They are nomadic, usually around in the winter months. If you should see one, they look like they were painted with a paint brush. It is a distinctive and distinguished species. Adults are overall warm brown, pale butterscotch color with a pale yellow belly and white undertail coverts. The party mask black facial pattern is very apparent on perched birds with a cool crest. The yellow-tipped tail is evident in flight. They are perfectly sculptured with every feather in place looking sleek and slim.

I always equate Oct/Nov as the months of the Kinglet! These tiny, effervescent birds usually show up in our spruce and pine trees and hedges seeking berries and insects. You hear them first before you see them! Sounds like laughter of pixies. There are two kinds of kinglets: the Golden-Crowned Regulus satrapa and the Ruby-Crowned Regulus calendula. The GCK is the more sociable of the two. The crowns of these pixie birds are usually hidden but when agitated a shaggy, prominent crest may be raised. Hyperactive feeders, they hop quickly between branches with wing-flicking. They forage by picking or hovering, particularly adept at dangling chickadee-style from tips of branches.

House Finch, Carpodacus mexicanus—a default finch in urban and suburban habitats originally is a bird of the West. Many of you have probably encountered this spirited little bird that is full of song. I didn’t see or hear many this year, which is odd. The male has a bright reddish/orange head and chest whereas the female is a dull streaky brown bird. These birds are the size of the house sparrow. They are extremely social and will nest on or very near your house! They are joyful, as are most finches.

Keep your ears and eyes open. This morning I stepped out of the door to walk Pearl and what did I hear? A LOON…I was SO surprised. He must have been flying high in the clouds migrating south or perhaps he landed in one of our ponds for a brief rest. Nature is amazing!
